Peggy Shepard
Welcome to NYAM’s annual Gala: Together for Health Equity. We’re so pleased to host our friends and supporters at our historic East Harlem home, where leaders in health gather to learn, share, and innovate. At NYAM, we have a long history of recognizing outstanding individuals who are committed to advancing health, and we are proud to continue that tradition tonight.

It is a privilege to celebrate three incredible leaders: Terry T. Fulmer, Michael Sneed, and Peggy Shepard. Thank you each for your outstanding vision, impact—and for believing that a healthy future can be, and should be, attainable for all.

While NYAM continues our work addressing critical issues that impact health equity, we’re also focusing on the increasing concern about how changes to our climate are impacting health. The challenges we face are many, but together, with our committed researchers, partners, funders, and supporters, we can meet these challenges and make a more equitable future a reality, in NYC and beyond.

We cannot do our work alone, and we are deeply grateful for your support and engagement as NYAM moves our shared mission forward.

Thank you for joining us this evening, and throughout the year, in celebration and in tireless pursuit of health for everyone.
Join NYAM in our commitment to address the root causes of health inequities and in our work to influence systemic change so that everyone can lead a healthy life.

Take action now.

Cheryl Wills is an Emmy Award-winning journalist for Spectrum News NY1. As the first African American woman to host a prime-time nightly newscast for the cable network, Cheryl anchors the Emmy-nominated broadcast Live at Ten on weeknights. Cheryl has been with NY1 since its launch in 1992, and is one of the station’s most recognizable journalists for breaking news and special coverage. She is also the host of the weekly public affairs talk show In Focus with Cheryl Wills, where she interviews the most powerful newsmakers and celebrities in the country.

Cheryl is also the acclaimed author of a series of books about her family’s transition from slavery to freedom in the United States. Die Free: A Heroic Family Tale, The Emancipation of Grandpa Sandy Wills, Emancipated: My Family’s Fight for Freedom, and Emma all chronicle her three-time great-grandfather’s heroic service as a member of the United States Colored Troops during the Civil War.

On March 25, 2011, Cheryl Wills made history as the first journalist invited to speak at the United Nations General Assembly Hall for the International Remembrance of Victims of Slavery and the Transatlantic Slave Trade, an event that was broadcast live around the world on UNTV.

Cheryl has been honored numerous times during her 30-plus-year journalism career by groups such as the New York Press Club, the Newswomen’s Club of New York, the Associated Press, and she has received a special medal from the United Nations Correspondents Association, personally presented to her by U.N. Secretary General Ban Ki-moon. City & State magazine hailed Cheryl as one of New York’s most “remarkable women,” and she is one of the women profiled in the award-winning 2020 book She Is Me: How Women Will Save the World by Lori Sokol.

Cheryl is most proud to be the Commander and Lifetime Descendant Member of the New York Chapter of the Sons and Daughters of the United States Colored Troops, a national organization of Civil War descendants who raise awareness about the 200,000 Black soldiers who bravely served during the Civil War. She is a graduate of the prestigious S.I. Newhouse School of Public Communications at Syracuse University.

HONOREES
Michael Sneed most recently served as Executive Vice President, Global Corporate Affairs and Chief Communication Officer, and a member of the Executive Committee at Johnson & Johnson. While on the Executive Committee, Michael led the Corporation’s global marketing, communication, design and philanthropy functions. Previously, he was a Company Group Chairman for Johnson & Johnson and a member of the Medical Devices & Diagnostics Group Operating Committee.

Michael joined Johnson & Johnson in 1983 as a Marketing Assistant. He held positions of increasing responsibility in the marketing organization and in 1995 was promoted to Vice President, Worldwide Consumer Pharmaceuticals, to lead the company’s growth in the Asia Pacific, Eastern European, and Latin American regions.

In 1998 Michael relocated to Europe as Managing Director, McNeil Consumer Nutritionals Europe. In 2002, he was named Global President, Personal Products Company. Michael was promoted to Company Group Chairman and a member of the Consumer and Personal Care Group Operating Committee in 2004, with North American responsibility for the Consumer Health Companies of Johnson & Johnson. In this role, he also had North American responsibility for the IT, Finance and HR organizations within the Consumer & Personal Care group.

In 2020, Michael launched Johnson & Johnson’s Our Race to Health Equity (ORTHE), a $100 million, enterprise-wide initiative focused on closing the racial health gap in the U.S. This initiative strives to eradicate racial and social injustice as a public health threat by eliminating health inequities for people of color in the U.S.

Michael is Vice-Chairman of the Board of Trustees at Thomas Jefferson Health System in Philadelphia. He also serves as a member of the board of Trustees at the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation and WHYY Public Media. He is a member of the Board of Directors of Wayfair and Kenvue. Michael holds a master’s degree in business administration from the Tuck School of Business at Dartmouth College and a bachelor of arts degree, cum laude, from Macalester College. Michael is married with three adult children and resides outside of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.
Terry T. Fulmer, PhD, RN, FAAN, is President of The John A. Hartford Foundation in New York City, a foundation dedicated to improving the care of older adults. She serves as the chief strategist for the foundation and her vision for better care of older adults is catalyzing the Age-Friendly Health Systems social movement. She is an elected member of the National Academy of Medicine and served on the independent Coronavirus Commission for Safety and Quality in Nursing Homes. She previously served as Distinguished Professor and Dean of Health Sciences at Northeastern University, and Founding Dean of the New York University College of Nursing. Dr. Fulmer is nationally and internationally recognized as a leading expert in geriatrics and is also known for the conceptualization and development of the national NICHE program and research on the topic of elder abuse and neglect. She is the first nurse to have served on the board of the American Geriatrics Society. She is also the first nurse to have served as president of the Gerontological Society of America, which awarded her the 2019 Donald P. Kent Award for exemplifying the highest standards for professional leadership in the field of aging.
Peggy Shepard is co-founder and executive director of WE ACT for Environmental Justice and has a long history of organizing and engaging Northern Manhattan residents in community-based planning and campaigns to address environmental protection and environmental health policy locally and nationally. She has successfully combined grassroots organizing, environmental advocacy, and environmental health community-based participatory research to become a national leader in advancing environmental policy and the perspective of environmental justice in urban communities — to ensure that the right to a clean, healthy, and sustainable environment extends to all. She has been named co-chair of the White House Environmental Justice Advisory Council, as well as chair of the New York City Environmental Justice Advisory Board, and was the first female chair of the National Environmental Justice Advisory Council to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. She also serves on the Executive Committee of the National Black Environmental Justice Network and the Board of Advisors of the Columbia Mailman School of Public Health. Her work has received broad recognition: the Jane Jacobs Medal for Lifetime Achievement from the Rockefeller Foundation, the 10th annual Heinz Award for the Environment, the William K. Reilly Award for Environmental Leadership, a Knight of the National Order of Merit from the French Republic, the Damu Smith Power of One Award, the Dean’s Distinguished Service Award from the Columbia Mailman School of Public Health, and honorary doctorates from Smith College and Lawrence University.
Ann Kurth, PhD, RN, CNM, MPH, FAAN, FACNM (she/hers), is a leader in health—with a passion for the planet. In January 2023 Dr. Kurth began as President of The New York Academy of Medicine (NYAM), a leading organization focused on research for health equity; she is the first epidemiologist to lead NYAM in its 176-year history. As president, Dr. Kurth supports NYAM’s mission to eliminate the barriers that prevent every individual from living a healthy life. As the former Linda Koch Lorimer Professor and Dean at Yale School of Nursing, and professor, epidemiology of microbial diseases, at Yale School of Public Health, Dr. Kurth helped shape Yale’s university-level strategies around a “planetary solutions” science priority; inclusive excellence; and campus sustainability. She co-founded the Yale Institute for Global Health, and currently co-chairs the National Academy of Medicine’s Board on Global Health, which includes a focus on climate change and health. Dr. Kurth’s research focuses on HIV/reproductive health and strengthening global health systems in the context of pandemics, climate change, and other stresses. She has published 250 peer-reviewed articles, chapters, and monographs. Dr. Kurth is an elected Fellow of the National Academy of Medicine, the American Academy of Nursing (FAAN), the American College of Nurse–Midwives (FACNM), and NYAM. She is past chair of the Consortium of Universities for Global Health, the 175–plus university member association supporting “academic institutions to improve the wellbeing of people and the planet.”
Wayne J. Riley, MD, MPH, MBA, MACP, is the 17th president of the Brooklyn-based SUNY Downstate Health Sciences University, where he also holds tenured professorships in internal medicine, health policy, and management. Dr. Riley joined the NYAM Board of Trustees in 2017 and was elected Chair in October 2020. Prior to joining SUNY Downstate in 2017, Dr. Riley served as clinical professor of medicine and adjunct professor of health policy and management at Vanderbilt University’s Owen Graduate School of Management and its School of Medicine. Before that, Dr. Riley served from 2007 to 2013 with distinction as the 10th president, chief executive officer, and professor of medicine at historic Meharry Medical College in Nashville, Tennessee. An academic and primary care general internist, Dr. Riley has more than 25 years of progressively senior executive-level management, policy, and leadership experiences in academic medicine, patient care, research administration, academic health center administration, healthcare management, health policy, biotechnology, the corporate sector, government service, advocacy, and organized medicine.
Bri Blvck is an Afrofuturistic hip-hop violinist/vocalist. She began singing at a young age and later learned violin and music production in her hometown, Charlotte, North Carolina. She attended an arts school where she received classical training and went on to study music education at the collegiate level at UNC Charlotte and Elizabeth City State University. She fuses elements of her Southern roots, hip-hop, classical, jazz, and R&B into a style that is almost percussive and uniquely her own. After a viral video of Bri playing Lizzo’s “Truth Hurts” was reposted on Lizzo’s Instagram page, she became known for playing covers of her favorite hip-hop and pop tracks. Bri was featured in the 2021 Netflix film Bruised directed by and starring Halle Berry. Her past clients include Lil’ Kim, Cartoon Network, Essence Festival, Tina Knowles, Apple, Karen Civil, Def Jam, Prudential, NJPAC, WNBA, and more.
Harlem Hospital made national news when Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was stabbed with a letter opener at a book signing in Harlem on September 20, 1958. The blade struck King’s upper chest, and Harlem Hospital’s surgical team operated right after his arrival at the hospital. Two of King’s ribs and part of his breast plate were removed. The team later said of King’s wounds, “Had Dr. King sneezed or coughed, the weapon would have penetrated the aorta... He was just a sneeze away from death.” Ten days after the stabbing, King issued a press release, insisting he felt no ill will toward Izola Curry, his attacker. During his recovery, Coretta Scott King presented flowers sent to King by his well-wishers to the hospital’s children’s ward. King was sent home on October 3.

As the original bold thinkers and innovators for health in New York City, NYAM has been a leading voice for public health since 1847. Throughout its history, NYAM has uniquely championed innovative changes to the systems that perpetuate health inequities and keep all communities from achieving good health.

Today, this work includes original research, programs, and policy initiatives that distinctively value community input for maximum impact. Combined with NYAM’s trusted programming and historic Library, and with the support of its 2,000 esteemed Fellows and members, NYAM’s impact as a public health leader continues.

In 2023, NYAM welcomed new President Ann Kurth, PhD, CNM, MPH, and under her leadership we have renewed our commitment to addressing the root causes of health inequities and working to influence systemic change for everyone to lead a healthy life.
A BOLD NEW FUTURE
NYAM is at the forefront of addressing the critical issues of the day—expanding our work across the lifespan to now address the impact of climate change on our healthcare, public health systems, and communities.

ADVANCING HEALTH THROUGH RESEARCH
NYAM’s innovative, data-driven solutions focus on social, environmental, and institutional factors that influence health—from safe births through aging well.

PUTTING COMMUNITY VOICES FIRST
NYAM’s work prioritizes community collaboration and integration of those with lived experience.

A TRusted Source
NYAM’s educational events and historic Library are trusted sources for information and actionable recommendations.

AN UNMATCHED PROFESSIONAL NETWORK
NYAM’s Fellows, Members, and partners are an accomplished, dedicated, and talented group of health and public health professionals and advocates, including top practitioners, academics, researchers, and policymakers.

Visit NYAM in Action online to learn about the innovative work happening at NYAM.
We are grateful for the generosity of our supporters.
