ADVANCED SEARCH
This is the default search screen

Advanced searching allows you to search in specific fields. e.g. author, article title, subject. Enter the search word(s) and select the field you want from the drop-down menu. Look at the results by clicking on the number under results.

- Advanced searching tracks your search history.
- To combine searches, clear the search boxes, select the ones you want to combine by clicking in the boxes under add to search, click add to add them to the search box and click search
- or type directly in the search box. e.g.  S1 AND (S2 OR S3)

Limit your results
Select any or all of the limits. Peer-reviewed journals contain articles that have been reviewed by experts in the subject area the journal covers.
Limit to date by selecting a month from the drop-down menu and typing in a year.
Limit to a specific journal by typing in a journal name.
Select full text to search only those articles available in full text.

Expand your search to
Select Also search within full text of the articles to search for your words in the text as well as in the citation and abstract.
Select Automatically “And” search terms. Note: this is a limiter not an expander.
Select Also search for related words to search synonyms and plurals.

To limit or expand your search after you have done a search, select revise search.

Select new search to do another search.

BASIC KEYWORD SEARCH
Use the Boolean operators AND, OR, NOT to connect your search words. Words together are searched as a phrase.
- Massage therapists AND education AND (standards OR guidelines)
- Antioxidants AND aging

- Limit your results
Search limits are similar to those available in the advanced search.

- Expand Your Search to - in two ways as in the advanced search.

To limit or expand your search after you have done your search, select refine search.
VIEWING ARTICLES

Once you have performed a search, the database will display the history screen, showing all the searches you have done in the current session.

- Click on Results to see the titles.
- The default display is the short or citation format.
- Use the arrows and page numbers to move through the titles.
- Click on the title of the article to see more detailed bibliographic information, or the Full Text option located at the end of each citation.
- Within each record, other fields e.g. author, source and subject heading, are clickable. By clicking one of these fields the database will automatically search it for you and return a list of items matching the new field.

- To return to your results list click on Result List button located at the top of the record.
- Change the display options by clicking on preferences.

PRINT, SAVE OR EMAIL ARTICLES

- Select the articles that you wish to obtain either by adding them to the folder (click add) or displaying the full-text of each item individually.
- The folder will tell you how many articles you have put in it.
- Click on folder to see what you have put in the folder.
- Click on the Print or E-mail or Save button at the top of the screen. A new screen will display allowing you to specify the format you want.
- Or choose one article at a time and click the print or email or save button. You can estimate the number of pages for printing.

OTHER SEARCH OPTIONS

You can browse the subjects index or the publications index and select your search term(s) from a list.

- Select subjects at the top of the search screen.
